CHARGES CRITTENDEN 'FIXED'

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

THE Star charged yesterday that 18-year-old boys fresh out of high school have been put to work cutting weeds on the state highways around Hope this week to gain their families' support for Ed F. McDonald for governor and C. E. Johnson for chief justice of the supreme court in next Tuesday's election. We were rather hoping the charge would be denied—but it hasn't been. We were rather hoping it would be denied—because if it had been denied we were ready with photographic proof that what we charge was true. Tomorrow The Star will publish pictures of youngsters cutting weeds on No. 67 west of Hope to earn a place for grownups in the state machine on election day.

The Star tries to play these things fairly. We could have stopped and pretended we were taking these youngsters' pictures just for their own sake. And they wouldn't have known our purpose until the plates came out in the paper. But that would have been a politician's stunt—pretending one thing, while being another.

The Star simply "shot" photos of the boys on Fulton paved highway from the window of a moving car.

We know some of the boys' names—but they're not for publication in this newspaper. We'll print the roadside scene tomorrow, and let it go at that.

As a child reaches for food—so a boy reaches for a job.

It's one of the few unthinking and completely honest actions in all this troubled world.

The burden of criticism isn't on the boys—it's on those who make the boys think that this is good and useful work, spending the public's tax money for private campaign purposes.

Governor Futrell Attacks Bailey in 2 Radio Addresses

Executive Rises to Defense of McDonald, State-house Employees

"GANG OF PIRATES"

So the Governor Terms Those Who Are Supporting Carl Bailey

LITTLE ROCK.—Asserting he was convinced that the "old state wrecking crew" is behind Bailey, Governor Futrell went on the air Thursday night in two radio talks, in which he endorsed Secretary of State Ed F. McDonald as the only candidate for governor pledged to carry on the policies of the Futrell administration.

He charged that Attorney General Carl E. Bailey is opposed to the Futrell administration and its policies and that he "had been" "assailed" viciously by Bailey.

After reviewing at great length the events of his administration dealing with refunding of the highway debt and reestablishment of the state's credit, the governor said:

"These are the most prominent accomplishments. There are many others of less importance, but important. The Futrell administration is now called the 'Futrell gang' and is being denounced in the most insidious way by that gang of pirates who once destroyed the state government and want to have the opportunity to do so again.

"Bailey opposes the Futrell administration, and that means opposition to its policies which have been put in force, and denounces the so-called 'Futrell gang' for supporting McDonald. McDonald says there shall be no reversal of the foregoing policies and that the refunding law shall not be disturbed.

"What does Bailey mean by the 'Futrell gang'? If he means statehouse employees in the highway and Revenue departments, their support means but little. If they were united they could not elect a mayor in the average incorporated town. If he means that great class of independent voters who are not concerned about a job, who care nothing about Futrell personally, but who do believe in those policies which have relieved the state from its wrecked and ruined condition, he has in mind people who can elect a governor. I am convinced that the old state wrecking crew is behind Bailey. What does this mean? It is a circumstance to be considered by the voter before he casts his vote.

Social Security
When congress passed the Social Security Act, it was a question whether the Arkansas pension act would be acceptable to the Social Security Board at Washington, or whether a special session of the legislature would be necessary to make our law conform to federal requirements. Henry Armstrong, chairman, and Mr. (C. H.) Andrews, secretary of the state Welfare Board, compiled the necessary data on old age pensioners in Arkansas, and appeared before the Social Security Board in Washington, of which Vincent M. Miles is a member. This satisfied the board, but in all cases, the board demands from the attorney general of each state an opinion that the

Germany Angered by Shooting of 4 Citizens in Spain

Both Fascist Germany and Italy Capitalizes on Executions

BRITAIN IN THREAT

Warns Both Factions in Spain It Will Protect Gibraltar Neutrals

BERLIN, Germany.—(Copyright Associated Press)—Nazi officials branded as "murder" Friday the reported execution of four German nationals by Spanish Leftists while the official press was rife with charges that Soviet Russia was fomenting the Spanish revolution.

A double-barreled protest against the shooting of German citizens and against the "unprovoked" shelling of the German steamer Sevilla was dispatched by the German Foreign Office to Madrid and Barcelona.

Both sides were warned by Great Britain that suitable steps will be taken to prevent the endangering of neutrals by either Leftists or Rightists fighting in the Gibraltar area.

Victorious advances by Loyalist troops in the Guadarrama mountains were reported.

No confirmation was obtained for broadcast statements that the rebels were on the outskirts of the capital city of Madrid.

Germans Fugured

BERLIN, Germany.—The shooting of four Germans by a revolutionary tribunal at San Martin, near Barcelona, Spain, Thursday aroused a terrific wave of indignation in Germany which sees in the death of three young members of the Nazi party and a German friend of theirs "murder directed by Bolshevik terrorists and foes of Nazism."

"The Spanish government which is unable to protect the lives of foreigners has forfeited the right to be recognized as a legal government," is the consensus in official German quarters which is reflected in the press.

News of the execution of the four Germans on July 24, was confirmed by official German representatives in Spain.

They reported that three members of the Nazi party who were on the way to Hamburg and another German taken to escape Spain in a taxi were brought before a tribunal which ordered their execution "though they held fully valid passes."

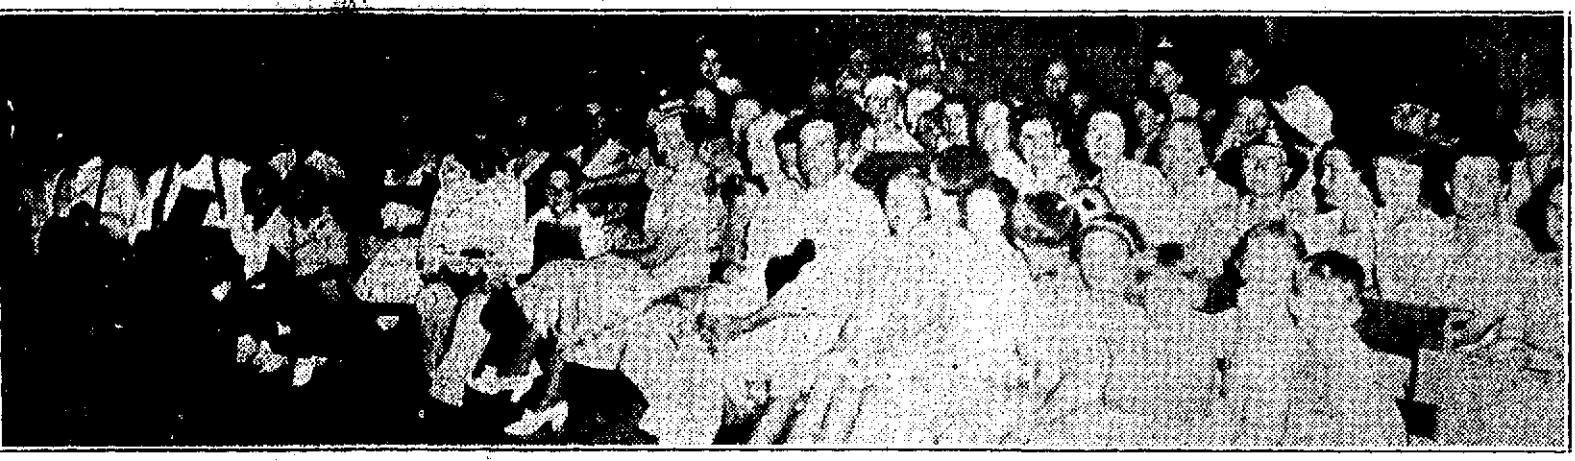

Italians Capitalizing Deaths

Italian diplomats are using the tragedy in an effort to involve Germany in Spanish events. They are telling German friends that if Germany and Italy co-operated in Spain, "the question of Germany's colonial claims would be solved immediately, because a nationalistic Spanish government would be so busy reorganizing Spain that it would be unable to look after its colonies and would relinquish them to the country which helped it crush the Red menace."

Spanish Morocco, where German interests invested heavily in pre-war days, would be the prize to Germany and Italy for their co-operation.

Tremendous nervousness seized diplomatic circles in Berlin which learned of these alleged Italian whisperings.

Wife Convicted of Murder Plot

Found Guilty of Hiring Negroes to Wreck Husband's Locomotive

MILTON, Fla.—(AP)—Mrs. Mary Vann, 40, was convicted Friday of being an accessory before the fact in conspiracy to commit murder by hiring two negroes to attempt to wreck the railroad train on which her husband, 60, was an engineer.

The conviction carried a possible sentence of one to 40 years' imprisonment.

The husband has maintained belief in his wife's innocence.

The state claimed that Mrs. Vann and Earl Travis, 35, plotted the husband's death so they might collect his life insurance and be free to marry.

Actress' Husband Married Before

But He Has Divorce Certificate, Rr. Franklyn Thorpe Declares

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—(AP)—Joseph Anderson, attorney for Dr. Franklyn Thorpe, former husband of Mary Astor, said Thursday the surgeon had admitted a previous marriage.

The woman's name, Anderson said, was Laura Adams.

Dr. Thorpe is defending a suit brought by Miss Astor, screen star, who asks complete custody of their four-year-old daughter, Marylyn.

They were divorced in April, 1935.

The actress asked an annulment of their marriage on the ground that Dr. Thorpe had not received a divorce from Mrs. Lillian Lawton Miles when he married Miss Astor.

Anderson's announcement was the first time the name of Laura Adams appeared in the case. "Yes, he was married before," the attorney said, "her name was Laura Adams, and they were divorced in 1917. He's got the certificate to prove that. They

Nevada Candidates Speak at Emmet

Crowd of 800 Gathers in County-Line Town for Stump Debates

Three men were absent when the Nevada county candidates took the stump at Emmet Thursday night. A sound truck furnished by Bill Denman enabled the crowd of 800 to "scatter out."

Warm debates are continuing in the judges race between E. H. Weaver and J. W. Bradley. The representatives race has lost the lively debate which characterized it before Mr. Silvey's auto accident.

R. L. Vandiver has withdrawn from the sheriff's race, leaving two candidates for that office, Brad Bright and Horace Hale.

Mr. Silvey, a candidate for re-election in the representative's race, is still confined to Cora Donnell hospital by injuries received when his car struck a culvert on the Rosston-Prescott road.

Herbert Garrett, candidate for county clerk, was called away from Emmet by the death of his wife's mother.

Carl Bailey Files Action to Obtain Polls Protection

Candidate Asserts McDonald Faction Has Ignored Minority Rights

NEW JUDGES ASKED

Bailey Brings His gubernatorial Candidacy to Hope at 4 Friday

MARION, Ark.—(P)—Carl E. Bailey, candidate for governor, charged in a suit filed in circuit court Friday that the Crittenden county election judges and clerks are "controlled" by County Judge J. C. Johnson and Sheriff Howard Curlin, supporters of Ed F. McDonald for governor, and were selected through fraudulent procedure at last Wednesday's meeting of the County Democratic Committee.

The suit alleges that all judges and clerks are "under the domination and control of the Johnson-Curlin faction and supporters of Ed McDonald."

It is charged that "a fictitious minority" faction was set up at the committee meeting to give the majority the privilege of naming all judges and clerks.

The petition asks Circuit Judge Keck to issue a writ of mandamus canceling the action of the county committee and requiring it to select one judge and one clerk for each ward.

Mr. Bailey was one of the founders of First Christian church of Hope, friends here recalled Friday. He left Hope several years ago to make his home in Texas, later moving to North Hollywood, Calif.

He was a retired business man. The accident is believed to have occurred near Vannoy's, Calif. The body will be sent to Santa Anna, Texas, for burial.

He is survived by his widow, five sons, Paul, Errett, Graham, Carlton and Royal Tyson, four daughters, Mrs. Amboline McHoney, Virginia Tyson, Rachael Tyson and Mary Tyson.

He is also survived by one sister, Mrs. Mary Middlebrooks of Hope, and three brothers, Randolph Tyson, of Center, Texas; Dr. Jason Tyson of Santa Anna, Texas, and Dr. John Tyson of Cross Plains, Texas.

Anti-Saloon Body to Blacklist Men

Dr. A. C. Millar, J. A. Hanna, Issue Statement as to Candidates

LITTLE ROCK.—Defeat of all candidates for governor, lieutenant governor, senator and representative who are being sponsored by the Liquor Dealers association was urged by the Headquarters Committee of the Anti-Saloon League of Arkansas in a statement issued following a meeting of the group held here Thursday.

The statement refers to advice recently given retail liquor dealers of the state by Senator Edward B. Dillon of Pulaski county, who circulated a letter among them urging united support of candidates favoring continuance of liberal liquor laws. It was indicated at the time the letter was sent out that any candidate favored by the Futrell administration would receive support of the Liquor Dealers Association, and retail dealers were told that representatives of the organization would call on them before the primary to give additional information regarding the list of candidates favored by the association.

John H. Glass, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, said that information on the record of each candidate on this question is available at his office in the Donaghy building.

The statement issued over signatures of the committee and Dr. A. C. Millar, president, and J. A. Hanna, secretary, follows:

"In view of the fact that in the public press Senator Dillon, who led in securing passage of our present unfair liquor laws, has advised the Liquor Dealers Association to confer in order to decide what candidate for governor they should support, we advise the friends of prohibition to undertake to discover what candidates for governor, lieutenant governor and members of the legislature the Liquor Dealers association is supporting and to do all in their power to defeat such candidates."

"The unofficial commission will report to the members of the legislature in advance of the January session and will make public its recommendations so that every interested citizen will have opportunity to study the problem and discuss it with his representatives and senators."

Cinematress Mary Astor... had a romance... kept a diary.

"Very stupid, that!"... says wife of Playwright Kaufman.

Wrote Mary Astor—
"He is a kind and gentle soul. One of the most decent, fine human beings I have ever met—and a man—straight through."

"I fell for him like a ton of bricks... as only I can fall."

"I wanted to be able to see George for the rest of his stay here, without being all upset—looking like hell—I wanted to have the last few times of completely enjoying him."

"I love George and the least I can do is save him from a messy scandal."

Says Mrs. Kaufman—
"I knew all about this case before it caught the limelight. I knew Mary Astor well. My husband met her just about this time a year ago. They had a flirtation. I cannot see any terrible harm in that. It is unusual for a husband to flirt with an actress?"

"We are married 20 years. We are adults, leading our lives in adult fashion."

"George is a good husband. I love him very much and he is in love with me, despite things that may have happened."

Your Baby's Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Some people seem to think that a person who is a genius usually is a "little bit off," if not insane. The famous Italian criminologist Lombroso, compiled a list of noted men who were in some way abnormal. His list includes the novelist Edgar Allan Poe, the composers Schumann and Gounod, the poets Southey and Cowper, and the philosophers Nietzsche and Rousseau.

In previous articles, I have pointed out that the person who stutters also may hesitate in his thinking ability and intellect. Yet even to this there are exceptions. The psychologist, Pillsbury, has listed the following great men who were known to have suffered from speech defects: Demosthenes, Aesop, Aristotle, Virgil, Erasmus, Charles Lamb, Darwin, and Charles V.

For the old days it was customary to label the people as being distinctly queer and abnormal. Yet, as I have already pointed out, left-handedness may be distinctly normal for the person concerned. In fact, right-handedness to him may seem an abnormality, and he may have trouble in too much emphasis is placed on what he considers normality.

There are records of geniuses, of course, who were distinctly abnormal in intellect. The philosopher Schopenhauer had pathologic fears and delusions of grandeur, and so did the Russian novelist Gogol.

The great French master of the short story, Guy de Maupassant, became insane. So did the physician Semmelweis, who is credited with having been the first to establish definitely the nature of infection in childbirth, pointing the way toward saving the lives of many women who might have died in this process.

It is known that the mentality of the human being passes through various phases, in some of which he produces works of greater originality than in others.

Thus, the great Goethe passed through periods of excitement at regular intervals of seven years, and during each of these intervals wrote poetry or dramatic works of extraordinary genius. Incidentally, anew love affair in each of these periods was credited by the author for his inspiration. It must not be thought, from what I have just said, that queerness is, in any sense of the word, a sure sign of extraordinary ability. Nowadays it requires a physician of special training to determine intellectual capacity and mental ability.

It should be realized, however, that the child with special gifts should have every possible opportunity to develop them, because, as the poet Horace said, "Training increases in-born worth."

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

Summer time is a great promoter of "wishful thinking." With the papers full of pictures of the bathing beaches, and magazines stuffed with stories of the carefree and the debonair, the day-at-home mother begins to think life is unfair.

And so it is, if we look at it this way. Everything is unfair. At the moment, I could close my type-writer with a bang, wish I were part of a century younger, and riding a surfboard behind a motor-driven boat manned by a handsome youth whose sole thought was to land the world at my feet (not just terra firma), and eventually let me lead Newport society.

No Harm in Wishing
Or I could merely wish that on hot days a little fairy would write my copy for me, wave me to a deep and piny wood and give me a magic draught for the headache I have at the moment.

Wishful thinking is good for all of us, provided we don't get too miserable over life at hand. I am not saying that life is always good. By the greatest stretch of imagination, I cannot find recompense for the mother tied up in hot rooms with her babies, beyond any hope of fresh air or breezes; or those in the drouth belt or the dust region; or the sick and the suffering and the handicapped.

But by comparing her lot with that pictured by the fiction dispensers, I believe many women must be wearying of their fates unnecessarily.

Hard to See Others Go
So, girls, let's go in for a few sour grapes today, and talk about the Mrs.

Umpty Ums who have drawn down their shades, piled into their cars and blown us a kiss as they left for Utopia. They're going to work awfully hard trying to have a good time, let's believe.

Maybe they'll find that the mosquito net is terrible and that at night they have to lie inside or be eaten alive. Or that it rains four days at a stretch. Well, we can do that at home, too, and smile at the rain if it comes.

Or perhaps those beautiful woods, that photograph so well, are full of snakes. Maybe the lake is too cold to bathe in, or the water at the inn full of sulphur or something. Perhaps they have pork every day, and fry all the food. Would we trade our own lovely markets and the things we like to eat?

Not a Choice Sport
I hope that no vacationist reads this, because I'd hate to spoil anyone's fun. But, girls-at-home, we have to have some answer to our day-dreaming and this is the best I can do. There are worse places than home sometimes.

I've been and gone and done. I know that we stay-at-homes this year are inclined to exaggerate the blessings of our changes. Children are wifed off for a sister from city streets; that's the only thing I can't argue about. But mine got along fine those years we stayed in town. I'm trying to be a help. Perhaps I'm not. But anyway, if Cousin Jane asks you out to the farm, pack up and scoot; yes, even if the wasps and mosquitoes are sharpening their bills, go anyway, and God bless you and keep you and the children. I won't be jealous.

Hollywood

By Paul Harrison

"HOLLYWOOD.—For its size, this is the telephoning-est town in the world. The average studio has a thousand instruments, and a man isn't considered an executive until at least four of them clutter his desk.

The Central Casting Bureau switchboard often handles a peak load of 300 calls an hour from people who ring up twice a day to ask about jobs. Lines to New York usually are busy, and all studios have huge trans-Atlantic bills. Before Walter Wanger returned to the coast recently, he held regular story conferences from Europe with his writers here.

Gregory Ratoff estimates that his telephone bill runs about $5000 a year. He chats with his wife, Eugenie Bontouch, who's usually on the stage in London.

Director Eddie Sutherland, during his European vacation, never was beyond the range of Loretta Young's voice.

All the time Marlene Dietrich was here, she talked with her husband in Berlin twice a week.

Private Lines
Some stars have switchboards in their homes. Jean Harlow, for instance, Her butler takes the incoming call and transfer it to any room in the house—if he's sure of the identity of the caller. Sometimes Miss Harlow listens in until she recognizes the voice.

Mae West has three telephones, each with a different number. One number is known by so few people that she answers it herself.

Joan Crawford often answers a ring at her house, and when planning a party she's likely to telephone a personal invitation to all the guests.

Shirley Temple likes telephones. Dives for 'em whenever they ring, and yells, "Hello—this is Shirley." Left by herself in her bungalow or in an office, she'll call everybody on the lot.

This is the second of four stories telling the historical story that lies behind the death struggle in Spain between discordant political elements, with brother killing brother in the streets.

By WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

Like a rising sun, Spain flamed across the skies of the world from that year 1492 in which the Moors were driven from their country, and Columbus opened a new world to exploitation.

Soon enough, gold began to come back from the Spanish Main and was piled on the wharves of Cadiz and Palos. Many a castle in Spain rose on this garden foundation as the conquistadores pushed their way into the Americas, Cortes to subdue Mexico, Pizarro conquering Peru, Coronado threading his way half way across North America in quest for treasure.

They left in their wake murder and blood and fire, but they also brought wheat, and the horse, and their religion to the Americas.

There was a boom in Spain. Prices rose, everything had to expand. Europe looked askance at the rise of a great first military power, much as it was to look later on Napoleon's legions and the German army of Kaiser Wilhelm II.

Persecution Echoes Today
But while Ferdinand and Isabella were planting the seeds of these things, they were planting other seeds, too, whose crop is still being harvested in Spain in the strings of burning churches and monasteries which smoulder in the wake of today's mobs whenever there is disorder in Spanish cities.

They were the seeds of religious persecution. Even before the days of Ferdinand and Isabella, the Christian Visigoth kings persecuted Jews and non-conformists. But under the great king and queen, religious persecution was elevated into a system and an unholy union of church and state by which each used the other to obtain its ends.

Isabella, liberal and conscientious in many ways as an administrator, was a religious zealot. While her armies stood before Granada, she issued an edict banishing the Jews from Spain. Perhaps 200,000 of them were driven out of the country to die miserably on the shores of Africa or to wander as consented to talk to a couple of girl admirers in New York, and then the fans were stricken speechless with excitement.

A lot of cranks call and try to reverse the charges. Can't be done. Bing Crosby's private number is changed once a month, as are many other star listings. Crosby hasn't much of a memory for figures, so he seldom knows how to reach his own wire and kids. One way out of the difficulty is to call his office at the studio, crown a couple of bars to identify himself, and then get the number from his secretary.

Disguised Voices
Together with a house, Henry Fonda and James Stewart share each other's telephone troubles. Mr. Stewart may become, for buffer purposes, Mr. Fonda. Or Fonda may assume the role of Japanese houseboy and blandly announce that his young masters have just taken ship for Honolulu.

Distinct acts are good sport for a number of Hollywooders. I mentioned once that Joe E. Brown assumes a thick German accent and, if he fails to recognize the caller's voice, insists that he has the wrong number. Clark Gable, when he answers the telephone, becomes a Filipino servant.

Robert Montgomery pipes his voice up an octave and sneaks like the dumbest of all Swedish housemaids. Drives callers crazy taking messages for Mr. Montgomery.

Double for Others
Leo Carrillo knows better than to bluff in Spanish, and so launches into Chinese.

Sir Guy Standing's American valet talks more like an Englishman than Sir Guy himself. The circumstances is helpful, for the valet thus is able to do most of the talking for his boss.

And several Hollywood poets would be surprised to know that they've been chatting frequently with Mae West's colored maid.

outcasts through Europe.

The Bloody Inquisition

But egged on still further by her priestly advisors, especially by the monk Torquemada who had been her tutor in youth, Isabella proclaimed his chief inquisitor under the order of Pope Gregory IX, who had named the Dominican order his chief instrument in extirpating heresy.

Torquemada made himself a name loathed through all history, a synonym for systematic and heartless cruelty. Men and women whose beliefs were not those of the Roman church were tortured with a brutal ferocity that makes the heart sick. The fires of torture and burning lit by Torquemada burned for 300 years; the heat they generated is felt in Spain even today.

The Inquisition was an equally implacable foe to learning, and thousands of books were burned because it was charged that they contained heresies, a custom still surviving in several dictator-ridden countries of today.

Between the expulsion of the Jews, and the persecution of non-conformists and Moriscos, and the continual losses of war, Spain was continually loded its best manhood. There is an old Spanish saying that "Castile produces Spain was the richest country in Europe, with the greatest spread between her rich and her poor."

Toward the end of "The Golden Century," Spain was outwardly the most glorious country in the world. But her government was inefficient, riddled by a corrupt and hobbling bureaucracy. It was then that England, ruled by Queen Elizabeth after the death of Mary Tudor, began to cross Spain's path. Her rising navy clashed with the Spanish sea power, and there were bitter conflicts on the Spanish Main in America.

Then Philip decided to put an end to all that. He made a loose alliance with France, traditional enemy of England, and started building a navy which was expected to be so great that it could easily land a force of the Spanish infantry on the coast of England and subdue that rebellious and Protestant country.

In the very course of Philip's preparations, Drake swept the West Indies clean and even entered the harbor of Cadiz and burned merchantmen while the Armada was building. Spain's "Glorious" Dims

In 1588 Philip thought he was ready. In May, a splendid fleet of 131 vessels sailed from Lisbon, carrying 7000 sailors and 17,000 of the flower of the Spanish army. The Duke of Medina Sidonia was its commander. The fleet was dispersed by a storm, but milled together again.

Elizabeth's English admirals, Howard, Drake, Hawkins and Froisher, were experienced navy men, tried in action. Their ships were better manned and carried better armament. During the last 10 days of July, 1588, they engaged the Spanish fleet in a running fight up the English coast, sinking, capturing or running aground many vessels.

At the end of that time, a storm broke, further dispersing the Spanish fleet, which tried to sail on around Ireland and back to Spain. Storms and the English harried the Spanish vessels, which were pounded on the rocks all along the coast, carrying with them the flower of the Spanish army and the hopes of Spain.

CAPE PALMAS, Liberia.—(AP)—Terrible starvation and death are reported stalking great areas of the Kroo Coast, where the Liberian government is waging war with the notorious Kroo Chief Nimley and his fellow tribesmen.

The chief revolted from the rule of the Monrovia government in 1932 and has successfully fought government soldiers ever since. Now, with the entire frontier force of the government driving hard to conquer or exterminate the rebelling peoples, reports received here. Hundreds of native villages and houses have been burned and wrecked, while natives have been driven with their families into the jungle where they are dying from exposure and starvation. Small children have been found abandoned by their fleeing parents. Others have been found dead, from starvation or from strangulation.

The revolt has spread along the French Guinea frontier, and whole villages are escaping across the border to set up new villages, and to become subjects of the French territory. The chief warriors, according to reports from the fighting area near Susstown, have killed or wounded a number of the government soldiers.

Charles A. Lindbergh's father, who was a member of congress, wrote a book called "Your Country At War," which was suppressed in 1918.

RESORT HOTEL

BEGIN HERE TODAY
ANN HAMILTON, pretty young secretary in a large business office, goes to a travel agency to make plans for her two-week vacation.

WILL WARE, travel bureau employee, persuades her to go to Lake Racine. Bill is obviously attracted by Ann, but she gives him little thought.

Ann goes to the mountain resort and at first is lonely. Then she meets JALINE SPRING, head huntman, who tells her he is not interested in girls. Ralph introduces her to JALINE SPRING, head huntman, who tells her he is not interested in girls. Ralph introduces her to JALINE SPRING, head huntman, who tells her he is not interested in girls.

Now GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VIII

ANN went to the steak room with Bill Ware and Lefty Ponds. Almee, the hostess, in her amiable way cornered Bill and made him help with the fire. It was a task he enjoyed. There had been six years since he had last experienced the clear tang of the new woods. After so long in a city office, the kindling of a flame under the stars with pine sticks was an incredible adventure.

Ann watched him closely as he attended to the fire. The tired lines under his eyes seemed somehow to have been erased. In the reddish glow his white face was like that of a blond Viking, looking over a brazier of coals on the prow of a ship.

He had dressed for the part of the fire-tender. He wore an old gray flannel shirt and dungarees. His feet were encased in a species of ancient sandal. In front of the flames his open throat was like a rugged column.

It was a revelation to Ann. The office worker had vanished, and William Ware had become a romantic personage in his own right, like that Viking she imagined. When he rolled up his sleeves she saw well-developed muscles in his arms. Evidently he kept fit in the city.

At intervals Ann saw Bill's eyes following the languid young bond salesman who had somehow monopolized her for this evening. She remembered Bill's hurt look when he had first seen her with another man at the hotel. But Bill hadn't had a chance to talk with her alone.

HE got his chance when Ann walked down to the sandy beach to rub sand in the skillet and clean it—this being regarded as a feminine job. Bill caught up with her, as she dipped her hands into the sands.

"Let me do that," he said, his eyes shining with the glint of the moonlight on the water.

A moment later, busily scouring the vessel with sand, he turned and said, "Who is that guy you're with? I mean—what is he?"

"I think he sells bonds, or something of the sort," she said. "Oh!"

"He used to play football at Princeton. That is, before he was married."

"I used to box at college. It was a small middle-western school. But you say he's married?" Bill faced her with large, hurt eyes.

Ann laughed. "Don't be shocked. And don't look so

The Candidate

"Father who travels this road so late," "Hush my child, 'tis the candidate," "Fit example of the human woes—Early he comes and late he goes; He greets the women with courtly grace, He kisses the baby's dirty face, He calls to the fence the farmer at work, He haunts the merchant, he talks to the clerk, The blacksmith while the anvil rings, He greets, and this is the song he sings:

"Howdy, Howdy, Howdy do? How is your wife and how are you, Ah, it fits my fist no other can, The horny hand of the working man."

Brothers, who labor early and late, Ask these things of the candidate: What's his record? How does he stand?

At home? No matter about his hand, Be it hard or soft, so it is not prone To close over money not his own, Has he in view no thieving plan? Is he honest and capable—he's our man:

Cheer such a one till the welkin rings, Join in the chorus when thus he sings, "Howdy, Howdy, Howdy do? How is your wife and how are you?" —Selected from an old scrap book

Lehigh's Declaration for Cook Attacked in His Own County

EL DORADO, Ark.—(P)—The Union county Share-Our-Wealth Club in called session here Thursday adopted a resolution condemning the action of Charles Lehigh and Marshall Purvis who announced at Little Rock that the state association had switched its support from Tom J. Terral to Judge R. A. Cook in the gubernatorial campaign.

The hastily summoned meeting, attended by 25 members, adopted a resolution declaring that the Executive Board had "no authority to take such action," and called upon all members throughout the state to stand by Terral as the organization's choice for governor, selected by the state convention at Hot Springs several weeks ago.

The resolution denounced what it called efforts to "sell out" Terral, and declared that the action of Lehigh and Purvis "does not represent the feeling of members throughout the state."

D. F. Duffey, El Dorado, representative from this district on the state Executive Committee, told the meeting that Terral intends to stay in the race. He said opposing candidates have "tried to buy him out" and have started rumors of his withdrawal.

J. A. Armistead, secretary of the club, presided at the meeting.

Governor Futrell

law of his state is valid. Validity of the Arkansas law has never been questioned. Bailey did what each attorney in the several states did. If the law is valid, what else could he have done? This was the duty of the attorney general. But, this is no basis for the claim that the attorney general is solely responsible for federal aid to pensioners.

"It was my purpose to stay out of this campaign. I had hoped that I would be permitted to go my way in peace. Almost from the beginning, I have been prodded by a part of the press. Insinuations have been cast. Finally I was viciously assailed by Bailey. The right of self-defense has not yet been taken from me. I am unwilling that the legislature and good men and women throughout the state, who had a part in putting into force those constructive measures which saved the state, shall continue to be denounced as hoodlums without a protest from me."

Tells Conditions in 1933.

The governor said in his address that when he was inaugurated in January 1933, "the convicts were nearly naked and barefooted and had nothing to eat but field peas, sweet potatoes and cornbread. There was not a dollar in the treasury that could be used to buy food and clothing and the penitentiary couldn't buy a box of soda on a credit."

He said the penitentiary owed to inmates $344,000 "in addition to monies borrowed from the school and highway funds." That outstanding warrants against the state amounted to more than $1,000,000, that bonded indebtedness for roads was in default with $11,000,000 of the indebtedness past due, that homes in improvement districts in 62 counties were subject to foreclosure.

"What was done to relieve the foregoing conditions? The penitentiary was put on a cash basis and has lived within its income since and made a profit each year. Part of its indebtedness has been paid and other profits have gone into necessary improvements in that institution. The penitentiary has made some money each year and the prospects are that it will make $200,000 net this year. If properly managed, instead of being a charge upon the taxpayers of the state, it will be a source of revenue from here on."

"In order to get on a cash basis, offices and departments were abolished. Others were consolidated. Salaries were cut. The expenses of the state government were cut more than half. In addition, the 1931 appropriations from January to July, 1933, were cut 30 per cent. Twenty per cent of a diminished and dried-up general revenue was used for a sinking fund on which was placed the outstanding warrants of more than $1,000,000. This enabled us to pay out of incoming revenues operating expenses of the state government. We were on a cash basis in less than 45 days after I took office. The state since has remained on a cash basis."

The governor reviewed in detail the state bond refunding program, asserting "The state's good name is again firmly established. To disturb the present refunding law would be disastrous."

Futrell listed as other accomplishments of the administration the law "allowing people to redeem their lands from taxes due without penalty and interest by the payment of one year's taxes," reduction of automobile license costs, constitutional amendments forbidding state bond issues unless authorized by popular vote and prohibiting increases in any rates of taxation existing in 1935, and requiring all bills to be passed by vote of a majority of the members elected to the legislative, and limiting state government expenditures.

"That's all I can say about it now."

When Miss Astor brought three suits, asking custody of her baby, annulment of the marriage and abrogation of a property settlement signed at the time of the divorce, she charged Dr. Thorpe previously had been married in Florida to Mrs. Miles.

Dr. Thorpe told newspapermen, "I have never been married." This statement was not included in his official answer to that charge in Miss Astor's affidavit.

Mrs. Miles now lives in Hollywood. She has been a constant spectator at the court hearings. She was present, on one occasion, when Miss Astor from the witness stand, declared, "he was still associating with Lillian Miles."

Anderson also was asked if Dr. Thorpe had ever been married to a woman named May McLean.

"No," he says she merely was a friend of his," the attorney replied. "We haven't discussed it much, because it has no possible bearing on the present case. As I understand it, she died many years ago. The doctor says he know her and her family very well."

"Coming Judgments" Is Revival Theme Friday

Discussing Thursday night "Modern Priests and Levites," based on the story of the good Samaritan, the Rev. Bill Couch dwelt at length on people who have so much religion they do not have any time to win the lost to Christ.

The evangelist will bring another message on prophecy Friday night, preaching on the theme "Coming Judgments."

put many "built-in" conveniences in Hempstead county farm homes at very low cost. Farm women are learning to "fix up" the old house if a new one is out of the question, reports Miss Bullington, home demonstration agent.

A rack for saucerpan lids on the wall near the stove will save many a search through the kitchen, and a knife rack will protect the blade edges, Mrs. Ida A. Fenton, extension economist in household management, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, suggests.

If the stove burns wood, an excellent built-in aid is a wood box that can be filled from the outside and emptied from the kitchen side says Mrs. Willie Porterfield of the M.L. Pleasant Home demonstration club.

Mrs. Porterfield made her own wood box. A built-in ironing board with a hinged support occupies very little space in the kitchen. It can be pushed out of the way, and let down out of the wall for pressing or ironing. Good light, and adjustment to the best working height for the person who uses it most must be considered in putting in such a board.

A closet for cleaning equipment and materials is a real convenience in the kitchen, Mrs. Fenton declares.

Lumberjacks Go to Little Rock Sunday

Hope Team to Face Benton Independents in First Game

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The Associated Amateurs announced the pairings Friday for the state sandlot tournament opening Sunday. Eight teams are entered.

The Hope Lumberjacks face the Benton Independents at 2:15 Sunday in the first round of play.

Manager Lloyd Coop sent the Lumberjacks through a long drill Thursday afternoon in preparation for the state sandlot series to begin at Travelers Field in Little Rock.

The Lumberjacks were scheduled to play Nashville here Thursday afternoon but the game was not played because the Nashville team failed to appear.

There has been no explanation from Nashville Friday as to why the team failed to show up, Manager Coop said.

The Lumberjacks, selected as one of the eight teams to participate in the sandlot tournament, will leave Hope at 8 a. m. Sunday. Two games are scheduled for Sunday afternoon and two Sunday night.

The elimination will continue Monday and Tuesday with the championship game to be played Tuesday night.

It had not been determined Friday what team the Lumberjacks would play first.

The Hope lineup, as announced by Manager Coop, follows:

Utility players—Womble, Messer, F. Ramsey, McDowell and Coop.

In the village of Khudorsk, Russia, there are no residents except professional poets.

Political Troubles of Socialist Told

Norman Thomas Smiles as He Starts 3d Campaign for Presidency

By JAMES B. HATCHER
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK.—(AP)—Often a candidate but never elected, Norman Thomas swings into his third campaign for the presidency like a man with a 50-50 chance.

Being a perennial candidate "feels like a job," he says. And he adds that he isn't discouraged.

Thomas, a Princeton graduate who has been a Presbyterian minister and an editor of magazines and newspapers, began running for office on the Socialist ticket in 1924. He had been asked to run for one post or another before then, but had always declined.

Here's his "run for" record:

1924 for governor of New York.

1925 for mayor of New York.

1926 for New York state senate.

1927 for alderman.

1928 for President.

1929 for mayor of New York.

1930 for congressman from a Brooklyn district.

1931 for Manhattan borough president.

1932 for President.

1934 for U. S. senator from New York.

He has held two appointive offices, however—member of an east Harlem district school board and member of the municipal charter commission.

Knows A Better System
"If my major desire were to get into the White House," says Thomas, "I wouldn't be a Socialist in this country."

Incidentally, he came from the middle west. As a boy in his home town of Maion, Ohio, he carried papers for Warren G. Harding. "That was a pretty good job," he smiles.

When you're a Socialist, it's much harder to finance a presidential campaign, because you have to depend on the nickels and dimes of poor people.

"It's one of our major headaches," says Thomas. "We change admission to some of the campaign meetings, the committees send out appeals and part of the money comes from sale of literature. We get an immense amount of work done by volunteers."

The 1932 campaign cost the party $34,000, but the whole year's expenditure ran to $50,000.

Claims Votes Not Counted
In 1928, Thomas was credited with about 230,000 votes. This figure jumped to 300,000 in 1932, but he says all Socialist votes east in Oklahoma were thrown out.

"The Socialist votes aren't even counted sometimes," he says. "I honestly believe I may have had twice as many votes in 1932 as were actually counted."

"Each time I have campaigned, it has been progressively harder to get on the ballot, Florida, Louisiana, Ohio and North Carolina are the most difficult states. It isn't always the law—it's how they interpret it."

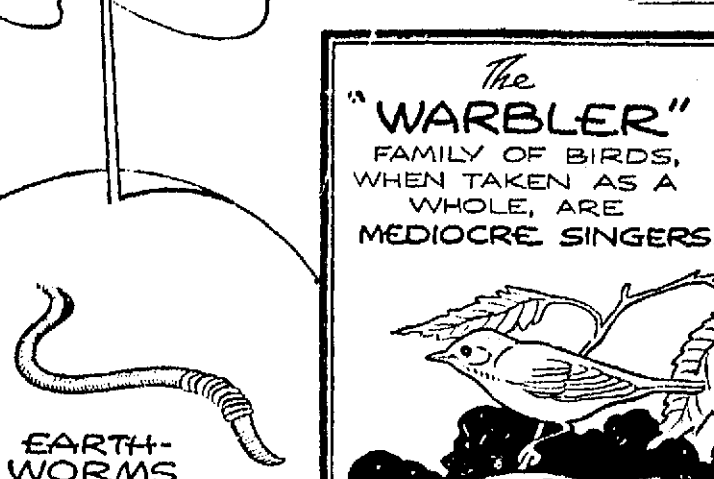

Thomas is carrying out an extensive campaign address schedule. Since April 1 he has crossed the continent twice on speaking tours and expects to do so again shortly.

Thomas will be 52 in November. He may run again in 1940—he can't tell yet.

Distilleries to Check Advertising

14-Point Code Aims to Maintain Decency in Sales Appeal

By PRESTON GROVER
Associated Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—It used to be principally the drys who complained against use of "sex appeal" in liquor advertising, but now the cry against it has been taken up by certain liquor interests hoping to keep the industry within the bounds of propriety.

The proposition is interesting as evidence that the liquor interests may be wary of the drys' power and are trying to give them no handle upon which to fasten a comeback campaign.

Ernest C. Kennedy, an executive of one of the largest distillers' corporations, told a conference of state liquor administrators of a 14-point code of good advertising and selling conduct his organization planned to adhere to, even if it had to go it alone.

He said large distillers and distributors were disposed to keep within bounds of "decency," even though federal regulation of them had been limited by recent Supreme court decisions.

But the big fellows, he said, could not enforce good conduct on the little ones, such as retailers. He seemed fearful these would let their eagerness for business lead them to use advertising in sales methods which might bring down upon them the wrath of the drys and the general public.

Urges Code
He asked the administrators to apply the code to the little ones, using state law as authority, of which he said they had plenty. Summarized, his code proposed:

That no illustrations of women be used in liquor advertising, and no appeal be made especially to women buyers.

That no appeal be made to children or youths, including college students.

That no liquor advertising be put on the radio or in Sunday papers, and that advertisers avoid associating liquor with Santa Claus, Easter rabbits, alluring outdoor or bathing scenes or handsome army officers.

That no illustrations feature ships' officers, locomotive engineers, aviators or others responsible for human safety.

Drys Still Strong
Perhaps no irony was intended but Kennedy also urged that no liquor advertising be placed in religious publications, "irrespective of the fact that such advertisements are solicited by those publications."

That drys have strength left was indicated in the sweeping primary victory of Senator Sheppard of Texas, co-author of prohibition.

Looking to the future, drys announced long ago they were going to begin the fight for prohibition from the local option districts on up. They put no faith in regulation for control of the liquor traffic.

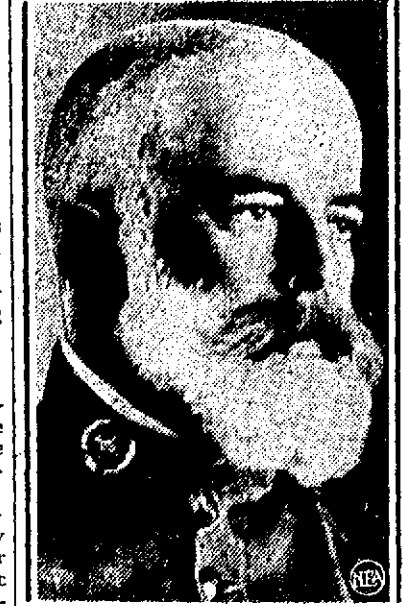

(Editor's Note: The Star publishes the above Associated Press dispatch as an item of national news interest, despite the fact that this newspaper has always barred liquor advertising entirely.)

Relics of Russian Czar
BELGRADE.—(AP)—A museum, perhaps the only one of its kind in the world, has been opened here to house objects pertaining to the life of Nicholas II, the last czar of Russia.

It is particularly rich in photographs, statuary and articles used by Nicholas and his family. King Peter II of Yugoslavia is a patron, and the opening was attended by many notables.

It is estimated 100,000 Russian emigrants, many of whom are said to be loyal to the czarist principle, live in this country. They raised funds for the "Russian Home," in which the museum is located.

There is no doubt in my mind that this country—and remember it is only 150 years old—will soon be the art center of the world.—Mayor La Guardia, New York City.

To the Voters of NEVADA COUNTY

As a candidate for Representative of Nevada County, I have tried to contact every voter either personally or by letter, but in checking over the list of voters, I find that there are many to whom I have not yet spoken to about their support in my race. I have not intentionally passed up any person, either voter or non-voter, without asking his or her support on August 11, and now time will not permit me to retrace my steps to do what I would like to do—to see those whom it has not been my privilege to talk with.

I am a young man that has been reared and educated among you. My people were among the pioneer families of this county, and have always been among those who paid their taxes and supported public institutions, yet none of that family has ever held public office.

The office I am asking for is a public office. We are all helping to keep it up. I do not favor the policy of putting one man into office and keeping him there for years and years, regardless of who might ask for his place. There are other citizens of our county just as well qualified to hold office as the present office holders.

My opponent has held the Representative's office for four years or two terms. The people have given him his chance to work there, but he does not seem to be satisfied with his share of the gifts. He keeps holding out his hand for more. I am a qualified young man, and this gift means much to me. This is the first time I have ever held out my hand for the public to help me, while it is the fourth for the hand of my opponent. I believe these public gifts should be divided among as many as possible. Don't you think he has been fed out of the legislative trough long enough? Don't you think that the young man should be given some help too? I will certainly appreciate your vote and support on August 11.

Sincerely yours,
Edward C. Bryson

Bryson Mops Up Silvey's Mud

Two State Universities, One Teachers College, and Arkansas' State Department of Education Backs Up Bryson's Record

This evidence is not submitted boasting, but for the purpose of clarifying a misrepresentation that is circulating in some parts of Nevada county. This falsehood is nothing but political filth seething with bitterness from personal and political enemies of Edward Bryson. They feel that he has this race won, and have resorted to falsehood in order to mislead honest people who are not in a position to know about this young man's life or his college record.

What is the falsehood? His enemies are seeking to defeat him with the old political lie that he is a thief. The best one they can tell is that while he was a student in the University of Arkansas, he stole a typewriter instead of a horse. Who started this? Basil Munn and Edgar Thompson. Who is Basil Munn? For the last four years he has pocketed $2400.00 of Nevada County's school taxes for unlocking the County Examiner's office on Saturday's. But why should he enter into Bryson's race and lie about him? Back in 1934 Bryson and Munn had a fist fight about another lie that Munn had told on Bryson. Then, too, after Bryson announced for Representative, Munn made his brags at Bluff City that he would fix Bryson up. Is a man of that character and a man with a college record of "F's" and "D's" qualified to make a truthful statement about Bryson?

Now, who is Edgar Thompson? Nobody knows. He is reported to be a relative of J. B. Silvey's whom Silvey has hired to scatter this low-down lie about his political opponent, Bryson.

What proof can Bryson furnish that this report is not true and that there has been an attempt to deceive the voters about his clean record? Read the following letters written by college and university presidents who know Bryson and who have no interest in this campaign, whatever, but are men who know about his school record:

University of Arkansas
Fayetteville
Office of the President
August 1, 1936.

Mr. Edward B. Bryson,
Prescott, Arkansas,
Dear Mr. Bryson:

I have your letter stating that a political opponent of yours is making the statement that he has a letter from me or my office to the effect that you stole a typewriter here.

No such letter has ever been written by me or from this office nor have I ever made any statement of that kind whatever. So as far as I am concerned the whole thing is a pure fabrication.

Very truly yours,
J. C. FUTRALL,
President.

Henderson State Teachers College
Office of the President
Arkadelphia, Arkansas
July 31, 1936

A STATEMENT

Edward Bryson came to Henderson State College from the University of Texas. In all our connections with him we have found him a straightforward, upright young man. There is nothing against him at this institution or anywhere else that I know of.

Very truly yours,
J. P. WOMACK,
President.

State of Arkansas
Department of Education
Little Rock
Mr. Edward B. Bryson,
Dear Mr. Bryson:

We are willing to accept your college training as the equivalent of a Bachelor's Degree, in so far as your eligibility to each in a Class "A" high school is concerned.

Very truly yours,
M. R. GWENS,
State High School Supervisor.

The University of Texas
Office of the Registrar
Austin
August 1, 1936

Mr. Edward B. Bryson,
Prescott, Arkansas,
Dear Mr. Bryson:

Your recent letter puzzles me very much. You state that your opponent has charged "that he has seen a letter from your office that I had to leave Arkansas' school because I got into some trouble here."

We have made no statement either orally or in writing to any person whatsoever.

The only letter we have written about you at all was written to Mr. J. B. Silvey, Rosston, Arkansas, on June 19, 1936, in answer to an inquiry from him. Our reply to his letter reads as follows: "I am glad to comply with your request. Mr. Edward Barham Bryson has not been granted a degree from this institution. He does have, however, senior standing."

You have been in the University of Texas at five different intervals, beginning with the summer of 1931, and there is nothing whatever against you here. You are in good standing and are entitled to return whenever you desire to do so.

As to the standing of the University of Texas, I will say that the Association of American Universities is probably the highest ranking organization of educational institutions in the country. It has a membership of 32 of the best universities in the United States and Canada. The University of Texas is the only institution in the entire Southwest holding membership in this organization. There are only two member institutions in the entire South, and both of them are on the Atlantic seaboard.

Very truly yours,
E. J. MATHEWS,
Registrar.

A Seventeen-Hundred-Dollar Centennial Edition Heralds Your Section of Arkansas to the World!

The picture shows the scene in The Star office the morning of June 26—when the newspaper brought off its Arkansas Centennial Edition.

Five sections had been assembled—all but the “main news” which was then being run off the press—and you are looking at a stack of 25,000 eight-page sections.

Two months in the making, the production cost of this one edition was Seventeen Hundred Dollars—largest and finest newspaper in the history of the Red river country.

Its forms are knocked down.

Its type is destroyed.

Its engravings have gone into storage.

Only a few hundred copies remain—and when they pass, it is unlikely that so important an historical edition will be issued again within the lifetime of this generation in Southwest Arkansas.

Saul Converted and Commissioned

Text: Acts 9:1-9, 17-19; 1 Timothy 1:12-14.

Jesus said concerning His forerunner, John the Baptist, that of men born of women there had never risen a greater than he. Yet greater than John was the Christian disciple who shared the glory of the new dispensation of grace and truth.

Surely this could not be better exemplified than in the apostle Paul, for John was the greatest of all who came before Christ, so Paul would seem to have been the greatest of all who came after Him.

Paul exemplified the power of the new gospel in changing men. He did not come gradually or easily into the Christian way, as did the disciples who had first gathered around Jesus. They responded to the Master's teaching and to the charm of His personality. There was something in them that seemed almost immediately to move them in loyalty to Him and that led them to forsake all for their part in the new kingdom.

But with Paul it was a different matter. As Saul, the name given him before his conversion, he shared the popular hostility to the new faith. He stood by, watching the garments of those who stoned Stephen to death, and here, in our lesson, we have a picture of him threatening slaughter against the disciples, going to the High Priest and asking letters of authority to the synagogues of Damascus, so that if he found any that were of the Christian way, men or women, he might bring them bound to Jerusalem.

Could such a man of intense prejudices and violent hostility to the new faith be brought under its power? It would seem little short of a miracle that such thing could happen; yet again and again in history men have become the disciples of the principles that they have attacked.

Here in Paul's case outward miracles seemed to move with inward promptings, in the change wrought within him. As he went on this journey of bitterness to Damascus suddenly there shone around him a light out of heaven. Just what the manifestation was we do not know, but so violent was the shock that Paul fell to earth, as he heard a voice saying, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?"

Saul evidently believed that some divine interpretation had come upon him, because he replied, "Who art thou, Lord?" The reply was, "I am Jesus, whom thou persecutest."

Stricken with blindness, Paul continued his journey to Damascus. The blindness, with his three days of fasting, may have prepared him emotionally for what was about to happen.

When Ananias visited him, laid his hands upon him, and restored his sight, Paul understood the meaning of the experience. He knew that he had been fighting against the truth, and with all the intense earnestness and sincerity of his being he gave himself to the new faith.

The grace of the Lord, Jesus Christ, had laid hold of him and filled his life with an abounding love. Would God that every earnest, but misguided, man might have a similar experience!

Wrestling Show to Start at 8:15

Moran and Goodridge Headliners at Friday Night's Card Here

Three wrestling matches and three rounds of boxing will be offered Friday night at the South Walnut street arena. Headlining the program will be Jack (Callor) Moran and Jimmy Goodridge who tangle in the feature wrestling event. Both have appeared here before.

Goodridge won two straight falls over George Ligasky at the arena three weeks ago. Moran, noted for his meanness, showed here last week.

Moran won two straight from John LaTute and then was disqualified in his second bout against Speedy La Race.

Promoter Mauldin said Friday that the state wrestling commission would provide a referee.

Two newcomers will appear in the 45-minute semi-final. They are Jack Purdin of Tampa, Fla., and Jack Savage of Chicago.

An amateur wrestling match has been arranged between Dean Browning of Hope and Tommy Parks, living just south of the city.

Parks is reported to have won the middleweight championship of his ship while in the navy last year. Browning has been getting pointers from the professional grapplers who appear here.

Toughie Reno and Johnny Clark, negroes, survivors of the battle royal last week, will open the show with a three-round boxing match. It starts at 8:15.

Harvey G. Combs FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

AN OPEN LETTER TO BOB BAILEY

Mr. Robert Bailey, Russellville, Arkansas. My dear Robert:

You have sent out a circular which does me great injustice. I am surprised at this conduct. Your zeal has probably led you into the regretful error of making statements the truthfulness of which you have not investigated. Bob, you imply that I filed a suit against the Arkansas Tax Commission to avoid the payment of taxes by the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company. A casual investigation would have shown you that I had nothing to do with the filing of such suit.

You said that I, as a member of the Text Book Commission, helped to contribute for a series of books at a price higher than is paid in North Carolina. This statement is wholly incorrect. An investigation would show you the falsity of this statement.

You charge that the new geographies cost more than the old ones. Bob, if you had even thought, you would have known that the four books in the new series cost considerably less than the books in the present series. You charge that I am making advantage of my position as Secretary of the Democratic State Central Committee in this race. If you do not know this is untrue I charge that you are the only Democrat in the state that does not.

It is unfortunate that this reply to your misleading circular, which for reasons well known you did not publish in the newspapers, must be published.

I am sorry, Bob, that you have gone so far beyond the bounds of propriety in publishing these untruthful statements that I must warn my friends to be on the lookout for other misstatements from you.

Respectfully,
Harvey G. Combs,

To 'Visit' His Subjects

SINGAPORE. — (AP) — For the first time since he was proclaimed sovereign in March, 1935, King Ananda Mahidol, boy ruler of Siam, will take the throne in the Royal Palace Bangkok next November. His visit to Siam has been delayed for several months by the Italo-Ethiopian conflict. The council of regency, ruling since the abdication of Ananda's uncle, ex-King Prajadhipok, feared to let him travel from his school in Lousanne, Switzerland, to Siam while the Mediterranean situation was unsettled.

The boy monarch is expected to return to school in Switzerland again next year.

Repeal the Thorn Liquor Law

The Unfairest Law Ever Placed on the Statute Books of Arkansas

The wets have their orders from headquarters and will take us to a worse, if possible, cleaning if we vote them in. If we must have liquor make the wets vote it in. Get a law that will compel the sale of liquor in daylight hours only. Grocery and other stores close at 6 o'clock. Take Beer out of Hotels and Cafes. It's no longer beer as beer anyway. You cannot now buy 3.2 beer. Repeal the horse and dog racing laws. Gambling is the worst vice on earth. Men should be ashamed to try to get something for nothing. Vote for men who will represent us instead of themselves. Clark won't do it. Monroe won't do it. They never did. What man has done, he will reasonably do again.

Respectfully,

N. P. O'Neal
